

Introduction

Penny Rugs were born out of the traditions of the early 1800's where people had to make do with what little they had.

From bits of wool scraps and felted wool scraps, they crafted functional items for their homes that reflected their creativity and ingenuity. A penny rug was used as a table mat most often, but translated into other decorative and useful items for the home as well as the sewing basket.

Originally, the mats that were made to protect table tops were covered with stacks of "pennies". The pennies were circular pieces of wool that were cut using the coins of the day as templates. Coins were different sizes than our modern currency.

In particular, the US penny was about 1¼" which is much larger than our current coin. The stacks of graduated size pennies were placed side by side on early mats. Both the edges of the pennies, along with the outer edge of the mat were stitched with a blanket stitch.

Blanket Stitch

To make a Blanket Stitch, thread a needle with the floss and knot one of the two ends of thread.

The starter stitch begins between the two layers of wool felt. The needle is inserted between two layers, then down through the bottom layer and up over the tail.

Pull the thread tight which will set the knot between the layers.

through both layers, and up inside the loop. Then, pull tight.

Repeat this along the edge of the fabric until you have completed the edging.

The stitching should be evenly spaced and have the loop along the seam between the two piece.

Instructions

Design Side

Pin four Dogwood blossom petals onto the candle mat base in an overlapping fashion as shown on the box cover. Each petal is attached with three stitches arranged in “bird foot print” shape. Your stitching should show when covered by the yellow center. Place a yellow center on the flower and attach with three french knots.

On the next flower, add two leaves prior to stitching the petals. Align the leaves so the petal stitching will anchor them to the mat.

Repeat for the remaining flowers with every other one having green leaves.
